"THANKING MUM" BY ADAMU ADAMU

■ The Honourable Minister of Education, Malam Adamu Adamu

"Thanking Mum" by Adamu Adamu is a tribute to Hajia Fatima Adamu, the Mother of the Hon. Minister of Education, published on the back page of DailyTrust of Friday, 19th June, 2015. This tribute, which communicated deep meanings and understanding of the value of mothers in our lives is reproduced verbatim by JAMBULLETIN to serve as a lesson to all on how to appreciate mothers when they are still alive and not only after death. It also serves as a reminder on the need to be dutiful to mothers by those who may not have been appreciative of motherhood.

The Tribute.

Today, (Friday, 19th June, 2015) Baaba, my mother, is 103 years old. If I congratulate her, she won't understand what that means. If I pray for her, there is every likelihood that God will accept. If I speak of her, the people with me will listen. But I must first thank her; even though there are no words in English or any other language to express the depth of my gratitude.

...How CAPS Helps To Streamline Our Admission - FUNAI Director of Admissions

Admissions when CAPS was introduced.

The admission specialist, in a chat with JAMB Bulletin in Abuja, said AE-FUNAI had no challenges embracing the new admission regime. This, he said, was because he had brought the knowledge and expertise he had acquired for over three decades to bear in the University's Admission processes.

He said, "CAPS, which remains a revolution in the conduct of admissions into tertiary institutions in the country, was evolved by the administration of Prof. Is-haq Oloyede.

"CAPS is a very transparent, standardized, cost-free and highly efficient admissions platform. The automated platform integrates the interests of all stakeholders, it's user-friendly, easily accessible with highly-manageable admission processes which gives room for controlled flexibility devoid of manipulation."

Continuing, he said, "Its delivery is timely and has largely impacted positively on sustaining the AE-FUNAI admission's process and, indeed, its academic calendar."

Mr. Onukwe advised candidates to always ensure that they accept their admissions on CAPS and print their admission letters before proceeding to even visit the school portal.

Commenting on how he tackles Admission lobbyists and racketeers who might want to circumvent the admission process, the one-time Director of Admissions, said, "To ward off undue pressure, you should follow due process by admitting possibly 80% of your quota in the first round of your admission exercise. By so doing, you would have pulled the rug off the feet of lobbyists, pressure groups and undue influencers."

He said, "The visionary leadership of the Vice-Chancellor, Prof. Chinedum Nwajiuba, and his team is poised to attain a world-class university status in teaching, learning, research and community services."

He said, "Making the university world-class is attainable in the emerging circumstances manifesting in the various expression of interests from both local and international bodies to partner with the institution. Similarly, it might interest you to know that AE-FUNAI is one University where you are sure of when you will graduate as it has a stable academic calendar hence you know your date of convocation.

"This is one university where you collect your degree certificate with your passport embossed on it on the day of convocation. This is one university you go for your NYSC immediately after graduation. This is one university where there is zero record of students' restiveness."

He said the decision to emboss the passports of graduands on their certificates was to add spice and make the certificate more credible and fool-proof against any infractions.

On the renewed love of the Board's retired staff by institutions, Onukwue said, "JAMB and the various tertiary institutions always work in tandem to achieve the Board's mandate of admitting suitably-qualified candidates into Nigerian tertiary institutions. In view of the innovations that the Board has continued to evolve such as the CBT, CAPS, etc., the need to seamlessly implement these innovations in the institutions has deepened the relationship between JAMB and the tertiary institutions. Also, the quality of staff of the Board particularly their expertise in the area of admissions and related processes has also been a selling point.

He said, "The emergence of JAMB as an organisation can rightly be said to be a product of the desire by the universities to harmonise their admissions. It was, therefore, not surprising that the pioneer Registrar of JAMB, Mr. M.S. Angulu, was a University Registrar while the current JAMB Registrar, Prof. Is-haq Oloyede, is a former Vice Chancellor of the University of Ilorin. Preference for retired staff of JAMB by tertiary institutions, which is very much pronounced in this dispensation, is, therefore, in line with the desire to reinvigorate the cordial relationship existing between JAMB and the tertiary institutions under Prof. Is-haq Oloyede and which was embraced by the leadership of the institution led by Prof. Nwajiuba. As a proof of partnership that worked coupled with good personal credentials, it was easy to seal a deal thereby opening up opportunities to both parties in the overall interest of national service delivery."

JAMB DECONTAMINATES ITS OFFICES AHEAD OF RESUMPTION

The Joint Admissions and Matriculation Board (JAMB) has put all precautionary measures in place for the resumption of its designated staff at their various duty posts on Monday, 4th May, 2020, in line with the federal government directives.

Earlier, the Registrar had briefed Management that the Head of Service of the Federation (HoSF) had directed that, as part of the phased and gradual easing of the lockdown measures occasioned by COVID-19, staff on Grade Level 14 and above and those on essential services are to resume work with effect from 4th May, 2020.

At a web-hosted meeting with Management staff and State Coordinators, the Registrar spelt out the processes expected to be followed by staff on resumption. For instance, he informed participants that the services of experts had been secured to decontaminate the various offices and that only staff on GL.14 and above and those on essential services are expected to resume work on Monday. He directed that the same protocols are expected to be observed at State Offices situated in states that are not under total lockdown. He enjoined staff to respect the restriction orders put in place by states under lockdown in a bid to curb the spread of the COVID-19 pandemic. All stakeholders are advised to continue to make use of the online platforms of the Board to access services as only a few number of candidates would be physically attended to for services requiring biometric verification. The Board appreciates and understands the need for services such as change of programmes, correction of data, among others, in view of the commencement of the 2020 Admissions exercise. Since, the Board does not want to violate the social distancing protocol, any candidate who wishes to access any of the services provided by the Board must first secure an appointment through the ticketing platform or by sending an SMS to 55019 before visiting any of its offices as only a limited number would be attended to on the days allotted for work.

The decontamination exercise which took place immediately after the virtual meeting was under the supervision of the Registrar, Prof. Is-haq Oloyede, in the company of some Management staff of the Board. The exercise would be replicated at its State and Zonal Offices nationwide on Sunday, 3rd May, 2020.

During the exercise, the Registrar ensured that thorough decontamination of the National Headquarters was achieved in line with global best practices as stipulated by the National Centre for Disease Control (NCDC), World Health Organization (WHO), among others.

Already, the Board has positioned hand washing facilities and sanitizers at strategic points within its premises while, at the same time, streamlining the entrance and exit points to control traffic in and out of the offices.

All staff resuming work had earlier been adequately sensitised on the need to comply fully with the directives of relevant authorities on preventive measures against COVID-19. These included maintenance of social distancing and compulsory wearing of face masks to mention a few

The leader of the decontamination team from the Environmental Health Officers Registration Council of Nigeria (EHORECON), Abuja, Sanitarian Damian Mgbaramuko, who is also the President of EHORECON, commended the Board for acting swiftly in decontaminating the office and putting all facilities on ground for the safety of its staff.

...“Thanking Mum” By Adamu Adamu

We give gratitude to God that our mom has seen these many years in servitude to Him. Baaba comes from a stock of centenarian Methuselas: Babba Dilolo, her immediate elder sister, was the only one to have died young—at the relatively young age of 93! Babba Kubura, her other elder sister, died in 2011 at the age of 107, while her elder brother, Mallam Buba, died in 2003 at 115. Baaba was born in Katagum on 17 Rabi Awwal 1333, which makes her 103 years old according to the Islamic calendar, equivalent to 100 years on the Gregorian. But today, a strong woman, she can pass for 70-year-old; and she always insists on cooking my favourite natural-chicken meal any time I am in Azare.

And I used to go to Azare on a weekly or biweekly basis; but this time other concerns had seen me away for the whole of ten weeks. When I arrived, I was told that Baaba hadn't eaten for two days, and I had luckily, I had come with two bottles of the fresh mixed-fruit juice she always welcomed; but taking that was as far as it would go.

“Baaba, please eat something,” I said.

“No,” she answered. “There is no desire for food in my heart, no appetite for it on my tongue and no hunger in my stomach; so, why should I eat?”

It is difficult to argue with that, but body and soul need to be kept together; and I have the reputation of being one of the only two people who can force Baaba to eat—the other is my kid brother Umar—but last Friday I failed. The struggle continues.

Even though shriveled and slightly bent with age, she is still in full possession of every bit of all her faculties. Her sight, her hearing, her power of reasoning and her reflexes are almost perfect. As a child, I had often sat transfixed and fascinated as she gave solutions to problems for some complicated, knotty arithmetical computations that people always referred to her—and they still do, and she still answers them with confidence and with accuracy. When I was in secondary school, I had to resort to employing simultaneous equations in order to solve the problems to which she always gave correct answers offhand.

I wanted to write English the way I saw my father did and be able to solve mathematical problems the way I saw my mother doing. Perhaps this was why these two subjects, along with the mathematical sciences, were among my best subjects in school. Otherwise, except for this engrained love for numbers, I cannot explain why, as a trained accountant and a practicing writer-journalist without need for mathematical competence, I would go so far as engage the services of a professor of mathematics at Abubakar Tafawa Balewa University, Bauchi, eight years ago to help refresh my differential calculus.

Baaba is my first school: and I owe everything to her—and I have nothing; and though I am nobody, I owe what I am today to her exhortations and counsel—from my religious impulse, my fascination with numbers, my insatiable curiosity to know what is within reach and knowable, to my indifference to this world.

She often used to say that every human desire or temptation is temporary, while the consequences or shame of yielding to it can be permanent—and permanently demeaning. She taught that giving is the highest virtue provided it is done out of legitimate earnings; because nothing distances a person from the race of God more than the consumption of illegitimate earnings. And in any case, whether you give or not, in the end, you must leave both what you give and what you withhold behind. She also taught that kara is not kara until the doer has inconvenienced himself for the convenience of others.

I was one of those children who tested her precepts and her truth to them. I was told that I was a problem child who would wake up—and wake everybody up—at 2:00 am, hollering for kunu—and God help Hawwau, my elder sister, if there wasn't any at home; for, kunu must be procured there and then wherever it was and howsoever it needed bringing. This manner of disturbing the peace and sleep of others went on for almost two years to the time I was weaned. And the labour continued after I was weaned.

And then there was cleansing and toilet training. There was bathing. There was feeding. There was 24/7 nursing. There was character training and there this constant being there for. There were many other things besides. And before all that, there was the drudgery of pregnancy, the pain of childbirth, hypertension, eclampsia and even death. If this was the only aspect to bringing up a baby—and it is not, how on earth can that be paid? Who, besides mom, can do this and still unconditionally love you? Who is there other than mom to accept to nurture a being from the state of utter helplessness to adulthood with such utter selflessness while giving such unconditional love?

Here then is mother, than whom a personality greater in esteem is not known—in her heart is that kind of unconditional love only the heart of a mother is capable of giving; at her bosom is the first and best of foods; on her shoulder a niche where tears of sorrow are shed and every manner of pain is soothed; on her lap, protective security that, if need be, can lead to self-sacrifice; in her hands, everlasting reassurance that never falters; and beneath her feet lies the House of Paradise. Woman is love writ large, or she is nothing. For, love is the essence of womanhood and marriage its raison d'être, while childbirth is its fruit, no matter how painful the statement of this reality to those who have exchanged old certainties for a new fad.

And whether conjugal, platonic, filial or motherly, love is universally measured on six different scales—as to its intensity, its extensity, its purity, its legitimacy, its duration and its adequacy; and on each of these scales, mother's love leads the world. For, motherhood is the fulcrum on whose axis the world rotates. Who else is there of whom such can be said? As for the reward one woman said it all: “Being a full-time mother is the highest-salaried job in my field, and is there any reward for love other than love?”

And the Great Teacher had said: “The world and everything inside it is valuable, but the most valuable of all things in the entire world is a virtuous woman.” And where is that being, who of proximity is

E-LEARNING: 9MOBILE SUPPORTS FME, GIVES FREE DATA TO NOUN, OTHERS

Determined to actualise virtual learning in the nation's educational system, one of the Telcos, 9 mobile, has provided free data access to some e-learning portals.

The free data was in response to the call by the Hon. Minister of Education, Mallam Adamu Adamu, that tertiary institutions should devise alternative learning platforms in the wake of the COVID-19 pandemic that led to the closure of schools in the country.

The free e-learning platforms are: the National Open University of Nigeria (ceagslearn.nounedu.net); Khan Academy (www.khanacademy.com); Seesaw (Web.seesaw.me); schoolgate(www.schoolgate.ng) and Mobile Classroom(www.mobileclassroom.com.ng).

9mobile advised users to visit any of the portals to access these online learning resources while the users give the telecom company feedback through the same channels in the event of any challenges in the process of accessing or using the learning materials.

The gesture is part of the Corporate Social Responsibility(CSR) of the telecom giant to contribute its quota to the development of the education system in Nigeria particularly as it relates to virtual learning.

... "Thanking Mum" By Adamu Adamu

closer, in love dearer, as to labor of love more selfless or of feeling more compassionate, and to the child as utilitarian, especially during the ages of vulnerability?

Mother relinquished the center of her universe for the pleasure and convenience of her progeny; she contented herself with hunger to ensure the satiety of her offspring. She spent entire nights without a wink for the nightly repose of her young. And she cheerfully accepted every difficulty so that her children might have ease. In this world, there is no slave of whom this much has ever been asked.

But indeed, in commitment, fidelity and loyalty, motherhood enjoys primacy over slavery: for, a slave only obeys an order given, a mother obeys wishes not yet expressed; and we must not forget that a wish is an order not yet given. Mother is the slave of love and the object of her love—and everywhere the world speaks of it.

The order seen in the night sky which in fact conceals ferment invisible to the naked eye—the cataclysmic explosion of supernovas, the drama of the extinguishing of the fire of red grants, the birth of red dwarfs, the pulsating of quasars, the dance of neutron stars—and the gyration of yet undiscovered proton stars and the return of matter to the Great Bottomless Pit of black holes—is but the cosmic representation of mother's love. It is a ferment at the centre of which is perfect peace. Fire may burn in the heavens, stars may explode in the skies, matter may contract and even disappear—and be recreated in the ultimate Unseen, of which no one has knowledge—but the bond of mother's love will remain intact in spite of every manner of tumult.

And therefore woe onto him the tablet of whose heart is not ablaze with the fire of love for his mother; woe onto him whose entirety of being has not been blasted in the furnace of the steel of emotions for the woman who gave birth to him. And he who doesn't love his mother doesn't deserve to live; for, he cannot love anything.

May the grace of God be upon mothers. Day in, day out, mother labored with diligence and loved with complete acceptance and without conditions—she clothed her child with the cloak of tenderness and armed him with the armour of amour and set him on the world as an example of what love can do—transform a fetus into a conscious, sensitive, moral human person. May the choicest of God's blessings be upon my mother at 103, and upon all mothers who bore, bred, and nurtured young for His sake. Wishing them all the best of whatever is good—here and hereafter; and on them also be peace—till the break of dawn.

Allah ya jikanta da Rahma.
